Critical illness is something none of us wish to face. Yet it affects many of us, often when we least expect it. Securing the right insurance now while you're healthy is one way to cover some of the unexpected expenses that could arise as a result of a critical illness.

In addition to paying a lump sum benefit, RBC Insurance® critical illness insurance can provide the assistance needed to help you cope with the day-to-day challenges, including assistance locating appropriate medical resources, child care, transportation and more — all aimed at helping speed up your recovery process.
